Work of the Murderous Sandbag
Near Newark.

A Child Struck Down and Robbed in Broad Daylight.

Chloroformed and Returned to Her
Home at Night.

Life and Reason Imperilled by Her
Brutal Treatment.

No Clue to the Perpetrators of the Dastardly Crime.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 17.—A thirteen-year-old girl sand-bagged in the open streets of Kearny, near East Newark, in broad daylight.
Unconscious and half dead, her body dragged for several hundred yards and hid in a damp culvert.
Her father's money was taken from her pocket, where it had been pinned, so that she might not lose it before she paid a bill.
Chloroformed and dragged up a steep hill and left half dead in her father's yard.
Such is the story of Annie Green's experiences yesterday. It is one of the most daring and terrible crimes that has ever happened within the precincts of Newark.
To-day the little girl lies on a sofa in her father's at 20 Walnut street, Kearny. Her eyes are wide open and staring, and when she is asked questions it is pitiful to see how her poor injured brain struggles to answer.
Her head is bandaged; no one her hands and arms where her cruel assailants bruised them in their rough handling.
"The story is that of a terrible crime, and it seems hard to believe that such an outrageous deed could have been perpetrated in broad daylight."
Annie Green, the victim, is a fair-haired, pretty girl of thirteen years. She lives with her father, William H. Green, and her mother, in a two-story frame cottage near the edge of a steep bank, which leads down to a small brook which empties into the Passaic River.
"I drew some money from the bank yesterday," said Mrs. Green at the breakfast table yesterday morning, addressing his wife, "and I want Annie to take $50 down to Carlisle's lumber yard and pay that bill for me."
Mrs. Green then went off to attend to some business, and left Annie alone.
Her mother called her back and fastened the money in her pocket with pins.
The girl wore a striped seersucker skirt, which contained the pocket holding the money, under a brown overcoat.
Annie then started by way of Walnut street to Johnston avenue. She went down this avenue to the Erie Railroad bridge. A steep path leads up to the bridge. She was half way up this hill when she heard quick steps behind her. She turned, but before she could see who was there a blow descended upon the back of her head with crushing force.
Annie fell nothing more.
The locality was bare of houses. The only one near the hill is a two-story structure with a saloon on the ground floor.
The mother anxiously awaited the return of her child. At 9.30 she became alarmed, but called her fears by thinking that perhaps Annie had gone to school.
Noon came and still the girl did not appear.
Mr. Green came home and was much alarmed at the girl's absence. He went to the police station in East Newark, Kearny and Newark. A general alarm was sent out, but no trace of the girl was to be seen.
The father hovered around the police stations, hoping that each moment would bring news of his daughter, and the mother was wild with grief.
At 9 o'clock Mrs. Green heard a noise in her yard. She thought it was her husband returning and rushed out to open the driveway gate for him.
As she opened the door she heard a peculiar chirping noise. Looking towards the street she saw a large, stout man walking rapidly away from the house. She watched him, and several times he again uttered the peculiar chirp.
Mrs. Green went back, wondering why the man made the noise. As she neared her back door something white on the ground caught her eye. She moved near and then a piercing scream rent the night air.
"My God! My God!" she cried. "My Annie."
She was on her knees in a minute, moaning bitterly while clutching the hands of the unconscious girl.
Two or three neighbors who had gathered in the house rushed out, and Mrs. Dorsey bore the girl into the house. Dr. Prindle was hastily called, and the family physician, Dr. M. F. Squires, came soon after.
Under their united efforts the girl revived somewhat. She started around wildly for a minute, and then placed her finger on her lips and whispered:
"I run away from home, mamma. Don't let them catch me. Did papa get his money. Oh, my head hurts," and then lapsed into unconsciousness again.
Dr. Squires examined the girl thoroughly. Her clothes were soaked with her Jersey waist was unbuttoned and turned inside out. All the buttons were gone. Her clothing was much damaged. She wore no shoes, and her stockings were torn and her feet were bleeding.
The doctor made an examination, and declared his inability to say whether she had been sexually assaulted. He found a soft, doughy spot on the girl's skull just behind the ear. This was where the girl was struck, and Dr. Squires emphatically declared that she had been sand-bagged.

At midnight it looked as though the girl would die. Towards morning she revived, but there was a wild, idiotic stare in her eyes, and she constantly complained of her head.
She was conscious this morning, and an Evening World reporter talked to her. Her language was somewhat incoherent, but her memory had evidently partially returned.
"You were hit, were you not?" queried the reporter.
"Yes, my head! Oh, it hurts! I was going up the hill at the bridge. What happened there—all dark, all dark," she whispered.
"Don't you remember anything more?"
"Oh, yes," she said, a gleam creeping into her wild eyes. "The man came up the hill. One slipped, I said I wanted my papa. Get the bottle, one of the men said. Then it was all dark, all dark," she murmured.
"Did the men put the bottle to your nose?" asked the reporter.
After a pause—"Yes, it was all dark, all dark."
The girl is in a very dangerous state and brain fever will very likely ensue. Her parents talked to her, and from what they learned, the last thing the girl remembers is being dragged up the hill at the rear of the house. Then, when she showed signs of returning consciousness, her assailants chloroformed her. What passed between 8 o'clock in the morning and 9 o'clock at night, the girl cannot remember.
Annie's father searched for her cloak and hat this morning. When he reached a deep culvert under a bridge at Sheridan avenue he found evidence of a struggle. The ground was trampled and there were marks of men's feet.
Mr. Green is positive that the girl, when struck, was taken and hidden in this deep culvert until night, then chloroformed and brought home.
The identity of the perpetrators of the outrage is a mystery. Mr. Green suspects parties living near by, but will not say who they are.
The police were notified last night. This morning detectives were put to work.

HIT WITH A CLUB.

Another Man Mysteriously Wounded on Seventh Avenue.

Patrick Reynolds, aged twenty-nine years, was found at his residence, 158 Seventh avenue, this morning with a severe wound in the back of his head.
Police investigation shows that his wound was inflicted by an unknown colored man on Seventh avenue, between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets.
The assailant's weapon was a club. It cannot yet be stated positively that it was a sand-club, though the case is similar in many respects to those of Inspector Woodridge and Hotel-keeper Cary.
Reynolds was taken to Roosevelt Hospital, where he lies unconscious.
Reynolds is a waiter by occupation, and has worked for some time at the New York Hotel. The case took place on the east side of Seventh avenue, which is in the Nineteenth Precinct. Capt. Reilly has been informed of the case and his detectives are working on it.

THE GALENA RETURNING.

THE ATHOS REPORTS THAT SHE BRINGS 136 NAVASSA PRISONERS.

The Athos line steamer Athos arrived in port this morning direct from Haytian ports. She brings news from the island of Navassa, that the United States man-of-war Galena, sent there Sept. 18 to quell the bloody riot there, is on her way to the Brooklyn Navy-Yard with 136 prisoners.
The Athos experienced a very tempestuous voyage, and during a severe gale of fifty hours had everything movable washed down her decks. Among the Athos's passengers were twenty-one of the Liverpool Jack's victims taken on at Port Limon.
They say there are still one hundred of the Liverpool Jack's victims at Port Limon, though many have died from exposure.

TWO INSTANTLY KILLED.

THREE LITTLE GIRLS MEET DEATH BY FALLING FROM WINDOWS.

Amelia Mammerick, aged three years, fell out of a window at her home, 314 East Seventy-third street, this morning. She died at the Presbyterian Hospital this afternoon.
Grace O'Connor, aged three years, fell from the fourth story window of her home, 312 West Sixty-seventh street, to-day, and was instantly killed.
Irene Mahone, aged thirteen months, fell from a window at her home, 312 West Sixty-seventh street, to-day, and was instantly killed.

NO EVIDENCE OF SAND-BAGS.

Result of the Police Investigation of the Cases of Woodridge and Cary.

Police Capt. Reilly, of the Nineteenth, and Murphy, of the Twentieth Precinct, reported to Supt. Murray this afternoon that in their investigations of the cases of Edward H. Woodridge, Custom-House officer, and Thomas Cary, of Middletown, Conn., both of whom died at Roosevelt Hospital, they could find no evidence to show that the men were assaulted with sand-bags.

LONGSTREET ALSO WON EASILY.

Favorites Winning and Small Fields
Cause the Bookmakers to Grumble.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
ELIZABETH RACE TRACK, Oct. 17.—As was to be expected, there is a falling off in the attendance to-day, but it is nothing as great as was looked for, and the Jockey Club have no cause for complaint.
The field is the place that shows the greatest change, for where the natives swarmed yesterday in thousands to-day almost deserted.
The track shows a lot of improvement and each day will make it much better, so that from now on entries are sure to be more numerous.
This will be most pleasing to the bookmakers, who are grumbling considerably at the poor showing of the track yesterday. The field, however, is an odd lot, and the bookmakers, of course, very little betting against the others, but from now on the chances are there will be little cause for complaint.
The Dwyer horses seem to be in great trim just now, winning races after race at all distances and in all kinds of company.
The winning tickets of yesterday given out by the Jockey Club have all been paid by the Club, holders of them not only receiving the money but their winnings as well.
Supt. Murray had on $300 to $500 on Fordham which was paid with the rest.

FIRST RACE.
Sweepstakes at $10 each, for all ages, with $500 added; mile and a sixteenth.
Starters. Wts. Jockeys. Weight. Place.
1 Longstreet 114½ Hadden 8 to 5 1 to 2
2 Crankman 113½ Taylor 9 to 6 1 to 2
3 Long Day 112½ Lamb 10 to 1 3 to 1
4 Annie Blackburn 110½ McCarthy 10 to 1 10 to 1
The race—Half a dozen chances were missed before the flag fell, then Crankman was in front and led to the head of the homestretch, where Hamilton eased his pull on Longstreet, and coming on, won with ease by two lengths from Crankman, same distance in front of Reporter. Time—1:54½.

SECOND RACE.
Sweepstakes at $10 each, for two-year-olds, with $500 added; six furlongs.
Starters. Wts. Jockeys. Weight. Place.
1 Greyhound 112½ Taylor 8 to 1 3 to 1
2 Top Nip 105½ Smith 15 to 1 3 to 1
3 Long Day 104½ Lamb 10 to 1 3 to 1
4 Little Bill 103½ Mosher 30 to 1 7 to 1
5 Reporter 102½ McCarthy 10 to 1 10 to 1
The race—Little Bill was first, but at once gave way to Greyhound, who was the only one in the end, winning under a strong pull three lengths in front of the Hop Billy, who was as far in front of Reporter. Time—1:18.

THIRD RACE.
Sweepstakes at $10 each, for all ages, with $500 added; six furlongs.
Starters. Wts. Jockeys. Weight. Place.
1 Overton 112½ Murphy 1 to 1 1 to 1
2 Arab 111½ McCarthy 1 to 1 1 to 1
3 Elsie Banded 109½ Lamb 20 to 1 7 to 1
The race—They waited at the post for Mr. Caldwell to arrive, then started on their journey to an even send-off. Arab took the lead, but Greyhound passed him and had three miles own way to the end, winning in a canter, four lengths in front of Arab, who was a length and a half in front of Elsie. Time—1:15½.

FOURTH RACE.
Handicap Sweepstakes at $10 each, with $500 added; mile and three-sixteenths.
Starters. Wts. Jockeys. Weight. Place.

2 Swift 103½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
3 Village Maid 102½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
4 Radiant 101½ Taylor 3 to 1 5 to 1
5 Cottolene 100½ Decker 50 to 1 4 to 5
6 Elsie Banded 100½ Lamb 20 to 1 7 to 1
The race—Golden Reel shot to the front as soon as the word was given and led for a mile under a pull, but at the betting ring he stopped to a stand still, and Harrier, who was the least tired of the lot, won by four lengths from Radiant, six lengths in front of Theodorus. Time—2:07¼.

FIFTH RACE.
Sweepstakes at $10 each, with $500 added; mile and a sixteenth.
Starters. Wts. Jockeys. Weight. Place.
1 Meriden 104½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
2 Swift 103½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
3 Village Maid 102½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
4 Radiant 101½ Taylor 3 to 1 5 to 1
5 Cottolene 100½ Decker 50 to 1 4 to 5
6 Elsie Banded 100½ Lamb 20 to 1 7 to 1
The race—The start was a beautiful one. Frejols, however, soon had a lead of length and half, and was followed by Swift and Meriden. The finish was a good one, with Meriden the winner by a head from Swift, four lengths before Ergmont. Time—1:10.

SIXTH RACE.
Sweepstakes at $10 each, for two-year-olds, with $500 added; selling allowance; one mile.
Starters. Wts. Jockeys. Weight. Place.
1 Reporter 110½ Taylor 7 to 1 2 to 1
2 Stephanie 108½ McCarthy 5 to 1 2 to 1
3 Meriden 107½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
4 Village Maid 106½ Galloway 10 to 1 1 to 2
5 Radiant 105½ Taylor 3 to 1 5 to 1
6 Cottolene 104½ Decker 50 to 1 4 to 5
7 Elsie Banded 103½ Lamb 20 to 1 7 to 1
The race—Reporter made all the running and won by a length and a half from Stephanie, a neck in front of Lonely. Time—1:46.

Some of the electric circuits belonging to the Brush and United States Company will be in operation to-night, the expert of the Board of Electrical Control, having given his certificate of their proper installation.

Linemen employed by the companies are repairing old wires and stretching new ones in the place of old, worn-out lines all parts of the city to-day, and by the time the decision of the Court has been rendered in the injunction suit, it is probable that all the wires of the Brush and United States companies will be in greatly improved condition, better, in fact, than they have been at any time during the past two or three years.

Preparations are being made in the Coroner's office for the inquest in the case of Lineman Feeks, which will be commenced to-morrow morning by Judge Schuchman.

Among the witnesses who have already been subpoenaed are Supt. Humstone, of the Western Union; Linemen Cunningham and Darragh, who removed Feeks' body from the network of wires; three firemen belonging to the adjoining engine-house; Commissioner Gibbons, Expert Schuchman, S. Wheeler and the dead man's relatives.

It is intended to summon a number of electrical experts, including C. S. Cutler, of the Mackay-Bennett Cable Company, and William Foster, Jr., an expert in the network of wires, who have been subpoenaed, as so many witnesses have already been summoned for the first day.

The jury will consist of prominent and influential citizens, among whom will probably be Charles Hausel, Prof. Felix Adler, Frank J. Conie, Henry Luchford and Charles H. Maxwell. V. W. Astor and Thomas A. Edison have also been summoned to serve as jurors.

Lineman Henry White, employed by the Brush and United States companies, was arrested to-day for stringing electric light wires in Grand street.

When taken to the Tombs Court it was shown that he was replacing a badly insulated wire with a new one, and he was discharged.

Argument in the case of the Electric Power Company, which was to have been argued before Judge Andrews in the Supreme Court chambers to-day, was postponed by the order of the court to to-morrow, in order that further inquiry might be made as to the Company's property.

Mayor Grant, who was given the custody of the crack-box found for Mrs. Feeks, the lineman's widow, which amounts to $2,173.99, deposited the entire amount in the hands of a trust company to-day to the credit of Mrs. Feeks.

BISMARCK MUST REST.

The Chancellor Prince Suffering from His Recent Exhaustion and Fatigue.
(BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.)
LONDON, Oct. 17.—Prince Bismarck has returned to Friedrichshagen. He is not feeling well. His complaint has been aggravated by his journey to and from Berlin, and he suffers from the fatigue caused by his exertions and anxieties while there.
His physicians, who were opposed to his stirring from Friedrichshagen, now allow absolute rest, physical and mental.

One lady says: "I and QUAKER ROLLED OATS are very excellent, and can eat them every day with a good result."

The Electrical Board Not Making
Much Headway in Its Crusade
Against the Wires.

To-day no official body was found to be making much headway in the crusade against the deadly overhead electric wires, begun so vigorously under Lineman Feeks' death.

The Electrical Board, had no meeting and Mayor Grant was awaiting the decision of Judge Andrews on the companies' injunctions.

In view of the probability that it will be several days before the electric light companies will be ready to operate their wires, gas lamps are going up again in all parts of the city.

In most of the principal parks they are now being put up, and a large number of workmen are employed by the Department of Public Works in hastening the completion of the job.

Champion Slugger Sullivan
to Make His Caucus
Debut To-Night.

HE'LL BEGIN IN A LOWLY WAY.

But What Great Things Mayn't Follow
Handling Hogarty Tickets.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
BOSTON, Oct. 17.—John L. Sullivan, champion of all pugilists, goes into the political arena to-night, with his coat of arms and both hands ready for action.

With the modesty which has always been the mark of this great man, as of all others truly great, he begins in a lowly way; but if he strikes into politics with half the force with which he strikes into an opponent he is sure to achieve ultimate prominence.

Ward 10 is greatly excited over to-night's prospect, for it is up there that the big fellow will make his debut.

Billy Hogarty's elevation is to be the immediate object of John L.'s maiden efforts with the free-wheel and free ballots of the great American people.

Billy is a friend of the chief slugger and was once his trainer.

He is now a candidate for the General Court, and the loyal Sullivan is among his most ardent supporters.

MUST HANG DEC. 5

"Handsome Harry" Carlton Receives
His Sentence To-Day.

"Handsome Harry" Carlton, the murderer of Policeman James Brennan on Oct. 28, 1888, was to-day sentenced to be hanged on Thursday, Dec. 5.

He was arraigned before Judge Martine, who denied Lawyer Howe's motion for an arrest of judgment.

"I have a few words to say, Your Honor," said Carlton in reply.

"Anything I have to say I do not wish your Honor or the District Attorney or any one else concerned to consider. It is the ravings of a disappointed criminal."

"I know that nothing I can say will be of any earthly benefit. I do not want to go to the gallows, but I am not guilty of the crime for which I am being hanged."

Carlton's crime was committed Oct. 23, 1888. Carlton and two companions were assaulting James Brennan on Third avenue, and Policeman Brennan had just caught Carlton when the latter drew a revolver and fired three shots at the police. The last shot hit Brennan in the head, and he died almost immediately.

Carlton was tried Dec. 10, 1888, convicted and sentenced to hang, but carried up to the Court of Appeals, which decided against him on Oct. 5.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 17.—Admiral Porter has come to his home in Washington in greatly improved health.
BOSTON, Oct. 17.—The Fen-American supporters reached this city at 7 o'clock this morning, and have come on a special train up the river.
